Dauer, f. duration. a) [power of continuance] Dieser Zeug ist von guter —, this stuff wears well; mit verschiednen Graden der —, with several degrees of lasting; die — des Cederns oder Eichenholzes, the durability of cedar or oak timber; die — des Thiers und Pflanzenlebens ist sehr beschränkt, the durability of animal and vegetable life is very limited. b) [continuance in time] Die — des Lebens, the duration of life; ewige —, everlasting duration; auf die — kann dieß nicht so bleiben, this cannot be of long continuance.

Dauersegewächs, n. 1) a perennial plant, perennial. 2) any fruit that keeps long. —pflanze, f. a perennial.

Dauerbar, adj. and adv. V. Dauerhaft.

Dauerhaft, adj. and adv. [having the quality of lasting] durable [timber, cloth &c.]. Eine — Farbe, a lasting colour; ein —es Werk, a permanent work. Fig. Ein —es Glück, durable happiness; eine —e Gesundheit, a strong health; eine —e Freundschaft, a lasting friendship.

Dauerhaftig, adj. and adv. V. [the more usual] Dauerhaft.

Dauerhaftigkeit, f. durability, durability, lastingness, permanence, endurance.

Dauerlos, adj. and adv. not lasting, not permanent, existing or continuing for a short time only, ephemeral.

1. Däuern, [probably allied to the Lat. durus, hart, Slavon. tvrde] v. intr. 1) to continue unimpaired, not to decay or perish, to last. Eisen und Steine — lange, iron and stones last long; diese Obstart dauert nicht, this sort of fruit will not keep. 2) to remain in a place, to continue. Er kann nicht in der Kälte —, he cannot stand the cold. 3) to hold on in time or to last, to continue, to endure. Eine Predigt sollte nie zu lange —, a sermon should never be too long; es dauerte nicht lange, so sah ich ihn kommen, it was not long before I saw him come. Syn. Dauern, Währen. Dauern signifies, to remain in existence, to continue in the same state without perishing, not to decay, and contains the cause of a thing's endurance. Währen refers only to the time and to the state, the length of which is marked by the changes of what passes. One may say: die ägyptischen Pyramiden haben bis auf den heutigen Tag gedauert, but not gewährt [the Egyptian pyramids have endured to the present day] being constructed of most durable materials; der Wechsel der Jahreszeiten währet und dauert noch immer fort, the change of the seasons endures continually.

2. Däuern, [Old G. turen] v. tr. and imp. 1) to grieve, to be sorry for anything. Mich dauert der Verlust an Zeit, I regret the loss of time; sein Verlust dauert mich sehr, I grieve much at his loss. 2) to feel pain, sorrow or regret for something done or spoken, to repent. Es dauert mich, I repent of it. 3) to feel pain or grief for any one in distress. Du dauertest mich von ganzem Herzen, I pity you heartily; er hat mich sehr gedauert, I was much concerned for him, I pitied him greatly. Syn. Dauern, Verdröessen, Gereuen. Es gereuet mich differs from es dauert and es verdröest mich, in referring merely to something which is past, and for which we feel ourselves to blame. Es dauert mich, may be said of something that has happened accidentally. Thus we may say: die Zeit dauert mich [I grieve for the time] which I have been obliged to spend in any business, and mich gereuet [reut] die Zeit [I regret the time] which I have foolishly or carelessly thrown away. Verdröessen denotes a higher degree of sorrow or vexation.

Eignen, Eigner, V. Eigenen, Eigner.

Eiland, n. [-es, pl. -e or -länder] [see ey signifies Insel] an island [chiefly used in poetry, or to denote a smaller sort of island = kleine Insel].

Eilandsmeer, n. a sea interspersed with many isles, Archipelago.

Eiländer, m. [-s, pl. -] — inn, f. an inhabitant of an island, an islander.

Eiländisch, adj. and adv. belonging to an island.

Eile, f. haste, speed, swiftness, despatch [applied only to voluntary beings and never to other bodies]. In größter —, in the greatest hurry; er reiste in größter —, he travelled post-haste; wir haben —, we are in a hurry; ich habe große —, I am in great haste; es hat keine —, the business requires no haste; unser Geschäft treibt uns zur — an, our business hurries us. Six. Eile, Haft. Eile differs from Haft, in proceeding merely from external causes, Haft, on the contrary, arises from internal. That person is eilig, who has not much time to accomplish a thing in; he is eilig, who from an inward restless ardour does every thing in a hurry.

Eilen, [allied to the Gr. eilō, bewegen:] I. v. intr. [u. w. feyn und w. haben] 1) [to move with celerity] to haste, to hasten. Einem zu Hülfe —, to run to the assistance of a person; Sie haben zu sehr geeilt, you were in to great a hurry; was [warum] — Sie so? what is your hurry? er eilt fort, he hastened away. 2) [u. w. haben] Fig. a) to hurry, to proceed with celerity or precipitation. Die Sache ist dringend, laßt uns —, the business is urgent, let us hurry; mit einer Sache —, to hurry a thing. Prov. — thut kein gut, the more haste, the worse speed; eile mit Weile, fair and softly goes far in a day; wer zu sehr eilt, wird langsam fertig, most haste, worst speed; Eile sehr brach den Hals, haste makes waste, and waste makes want, and want makes strife between the good man and his wife. b) to pass quickly, as time. II. v. r. sich —, to make haste, to speed. Gehe, aber eile dich, go, but make despatch.

Eilbote, m. a messenger, who travels with speed, a courier express. — botchaftlich, adj. and adv. by a messenger travelling post-haste, by a courier express. — fertig, l. adj. and adv. hasty, hurrying. — fertig sein, to have to hasten; das Geschäft wurde — fertig verrichtet, the business was done with despatch. Six. V. eilig, II. a. w. with speed, haste, expedition, or despatch, speedily. — fertig sein, f. haste, speediness, quickness, despatch. — flug, m. a speedy flight. Eils, Eilsed, V. Eis, Eised.

Eilig, adj. and adv. 1) hasty, speedy. Ich bin sehr —, I am in great haste; — ist, in the greatest haste. 2) requiring haste. Ich habe eilen — en Gang zu machen, I am in a hurry to go out. Six. Eilig, Eilsfertig, Haftig. Each of these words implies an eagerness to dispatch something in a short time. But he is eilig, who has much time left, and has therefore the motive for performing much in a short space of time. Der Eilsfertig actually does dispatch much in a short time, he is quick in performance, not as der Hastige whose motions are accelerated by an inward restless impulse, but because the circumstances are urgent. Eilsfertig can be said of persons only, eilig also of things. One may ask a person who is writing a letter: Warum sind Sie so eilig? and the answer may be: der Brief ist eilig, i. e. it must be speedily at the place of its destination.
